Dear colleagues

We are over a year into the pandemic, which has totally changed our continuing education and training programme. We all long for a return to normality, training in the old tradition of face-to-face meetings and collegial exchanges during and outside official events.

For the second half of the year, some headache societies have already switched their major congresses to virtual. For example, the International Headache Society (IHS) and the European Headache Federation (EHF) decided at an early stage to merge their congresses and go completely digital.

Of course, this also has advantages such as improved international or multinational accessibility or the possibility of more spontaneous participation.

Nevertheless, we would like to make a virtue of necessity and offer a face-to-face event with live broadcasting in Switzerland and the possibility of virtual participation in order to present the highlights of the joint IHC/EHF Congress 2021 to a wider audience.

Together with our sponsors we would therefore like to invite you to

We are looking forward to a large number of participants!
